

Broken Tree Campsite

This campsite is located 1.6 miles east from the FDR Park Office on the main PMT. On this route you cross paved roads twice before you reach the camp just east past Mile 5 marker. If you park at Fox Den Cove Parking Lot, cross GA 190 and follow the PMT back to the west, Broken Tree Campsite is 6/10 of a mile west of Mile 6. The camp is on south side of the trail (heading east) in a small bottom just before you start back uphill. There is wooden sign on your right. This is a small camp for three tents at the most. In winter this is a warm camp, as a hill north of it should block the wind. There is an ample supply of downed, dead wood for campfires. There is a year-round spring right on the edge of the camp. This is a single fire ring, single permit use site, meaning only one person/couple or small group of about 6 will be issued a permit for this site. Thus if you choose this camp you not be sharing the camp.

The name for this site came from a large broken tree we found over the trail when the area for site was first located . Shortly after the campsite was opened some careless backpackers started a forest fire that burned the broken tree on April 4, 2004 .
